VIOLENT EXTREMISM IN THE LEBANESE CONTEXT

THE LEBANESE

NATIONAL ACTION PLAN

for PREVENTING VIOLENT EXTREMISM

2021 - 2023

A. Definition of Terms

The Lebanese National Strategy for Preventing Violent Extremism defined "Violent Extremism" and "Prevention" as follows:

Definition of "Violent Extremism"

The definition of "violent extremism" varies according to the approach adopted. Therefore, the Strategy adopted a definition of "violent extremism" that includes the following three points:

- The spread of individual and collective hatred that may lead to extremist violence.
- The rejection of diversity and nonacceptance of others, and the use of violence as a means of expression and influence.
- A behavior that threatens values that ensure social stability.

Definition of "Prevention"

Prevention entails the development of policies that can be transformed into a societal culture that will enhance the community's abilities to protect itself against violent extremism.

Communities are subject to permanent social, economic, cultural and developmental transformations. The culture of prevention should become a sustainable behavior that materializes through:

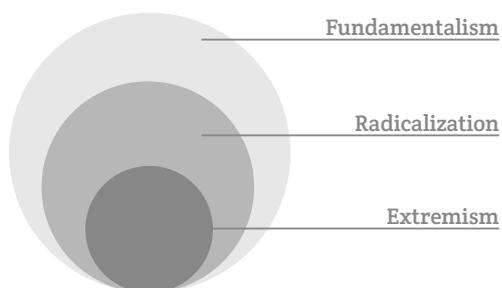

Raising awareness about the risks of violent extremism and by monitoring and anticipating social, cultural, developmental and behavioural transformations at the individual and community levels that may lead to violent extremism.

Developing a list of social, economic, environmental, cultural, security and other risks and developing targeted responses through the establishment of specialized social observatories.

B. Lexicon

It is important to differentiate between key intersecting concepts which could impact the understanding and intervention of policymakers and researchers. The NAP recognizes that although fundamentalism, radicalization and extremism are interconnected phenomena, using these terms interchangeably is an analytical error.

As illustrated in the figure below, this NAP defines the concepts as follow:

Fundamentalism is belief in the strict and literal interpretation of texts, teachings, or content of a given ideology.

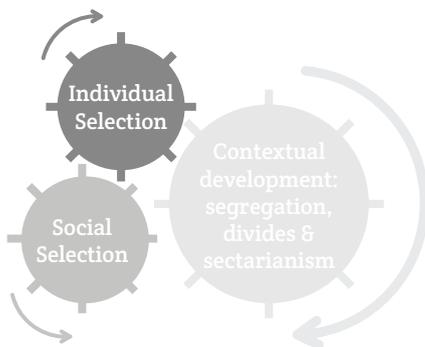

Radicalization encompasses the features of fundamentalism but distinguished by the deep intention to transform and influence society towards the adoption of the ideology or mental image of the world.

Extremism is the rejection of diversity, the non-acceptance of the other. Extremism becomes violent when extremists resort to the utilization of violence as a means to influence society and transform it.

Radicalization in Depth

There is limited empirical research on the causes of violent extremism in Lebanon. During the process of preparing the Lebanese PVE strategy, several literature reviews and consultations were commissioned. One of the conclusions from this research was that violent extremism is the product of a complex interaction between structural factors, i.e. elements in the Lebanese society which create the conducive environment for radicalization, and precipitative factors, which are events and incidents that act as a trigger for violent action, and create the sense of purpose for those joining a violent extremist group.

To simplify the complexity of the developed model, one can view the dynamics of VE in Lebanon based on the interaction of three forces: The first force is the effects of social segregation based on deep confessional divides which feed the factors that enrich the spread and development of extremism narratives. This force is the essence of the creation of in-group and out-group dynamics. Secondly, the forces which lead to the normalization and spread of violent extremism within a specific social group based on "Social Selection". This selection is usually fed by power imbalance, scepticism on political representation and state legitimacy and feelings of relative deprivation. The size of the targeted social group and the density of its social network explain the contagion speed of extremism narratives. In Lebanon, with the increasing demographic intensity, due to indigenous factors of population growth and urban expansion as well as exogenous factor of refugees' influx, the rate of contagion is quite high, and the strength of weak network ties is quite effective. This hypothesis has been experimented using agent-based modelling. Thirdly, individual selection forces, according to (Bohanna,2019) the interaction between the causes of social selection and individual propensity to internalize extremism ideas are the key explainers of individual decision to violent extremism. In Lebanon, a body of research, mainly conducted on cities in the northern regions of Lebanon, proves that individuals with higher risk of exposure to radical groups and for whom violence is a normative and acceptable tool for action are at high risk of being engaged in VE, especially if they are suffering from personal grievances related to human rights violation or socioeconomic hardships.

C. Context

Due to the geographical and strategic location of Lebanon, its presence in a regional environment where violent extremism is proliferating, there is a need to maintain security and social peace and safeguard Lebanon's social diversity. The prevention of violent extremism in Lebanon, as an effort to address this need, is particularly important now.

The PVE activity has been constantly ongoing since the launch of the Strategy Development Process in 2016. Although Lebanon has gone through hard times and has undergone vacancies in executive posts such as the Presidency and Government, the PVE Unit has been able to operate and engage with all-of-government and all-of-society, as well as establish its lead partnerships, ever since its establishment.

However, the situation has changed ever since the Lebanese PVE agenda was launched. An unprecedented socioeconomic and political crisis, a pandemic that devastated lives and exhausted the health system, and the port explosion in Beirut, in addition to the 1.5 million Syrian refugees, the 23 months of government vacancies, national uprising and political instability and fragility, all have been challenges forming a multi-faceted crisis. On the other hand, with the recent developments in the Syrian crisis, there is a pertinent risk of return of radicalized individuals to Lebanon.

Moreover, COVID-19 has caused different consequences in different regions or countries. Some of them are linked to push and pull factors associated with violent extremism. COVID-19 has had an impact on violent extremist groups, that have remained active and also responded to the pandemic. This reality created new risks and challenges for the effort to prevent violent extremism. Hence, PVE is a priority now more than ever.

D. Rationale of Intervention

Despite the fact that the level of violent extremism activity has declined during the last three years, violent extremism remains to be a real and imminent threat to Lebanon's security and stability for the following reasons:

First, no significant change has happened on the structural factors level which are assumed to cause the various radicalization waves. As explained in the assumptions below, data shows a continuity in the decline of major socioeconomic, governance, and justice indicators to which we could attribute the cultivation of grievances by violent extremists' recruiters.

Second, the major factor of violent extremism activity decline appears to be the high performance of the security forces and their ability to conduct effective preventive and pre-emptive operations to disrupt terroristic operations; arrest major planners and leadership of extremists' groups; and stop the flow of finances. According to UNODC, the Lebanese security forces appear to have decoded the DNA of the terrorist groups operations after 2015 when the number of raids and arrests increased to reach more than 600 actions per month comparing to figures less than one tenth of that level in the previous years. The downfall of that is that Lebanese prisons are now full of accused individuals who are waiting trials and an overpopulation of violent extremists in prison without proper capacity to rehabilitate them. In that sense, the risk of prisoners building connections, spreading narratives and planning operations from prisons are quite high and the need for effective deradicalization effort is increasingly needed.

Third, Lebanon has entered a transitory phase after the spark of the social unrest in October 2019. The social movement brought a lot of unifying, civil, peaceful and reformative discourse to the Lebanese public sphere. An image of cross-sectarianism and citizenship has been widespread in the first weeks of the protests. However, the deeply rooted confessional divides have taken their way up in the political battle. The PVE unit has undertaken a thorough social media monitoring exercise to observe the social discourse and its possible ramifications. The key observations were related to the divide, diversity, and sometimes contractions in the approach to reform or understanding of reform by the various groups. Polarizing narratives are on the rise.

The most critical observation from social media analysis was the online activism of ISIS in the aftermath of the killing of its head Abu Bakr Al Baghdadi. The group used viral hashtags in Lebanon to spread narratives and news about its allegiance to the new so-called "Caliph"; its existence and organizational viability; spreading falsified news about victory, operational effectiveness, legitimacy; spreading newsletters; spreading narratives amplifying sectarian grievances and questioning Lebanon's constitution.

Fourth, Lebanon has positively responded to the UN Secretary General's Global Plan of Action for PVE and his call on Member States to formulate contextually specific PVE strategies and NAPs. In that sense, Lebanon shall be actively participating in the global prevention efforts and contributing to the production of security as a global public good.

E. Scope, Limitations, and Target

Several factors have contributed to Lebanon being a susceptible ground for the recruitment and recruitment efforts of violent extremist groups. “Where inequality and institutionalized discrimination coincide with religious or ethnic faultlines, there is an increased likelihood of radicalization and mobilization.”¹

NAP shall include programs which aim to change policy and legislations which are necessary for achieving the designated outcomes. The NAP shall include actions and activities which are consistent with the PVE strategy and its strategic standards, thus upholding Human Rights standards. An essential element of the NAP should be its agility and responsiveness to change in context, as violent extremism is a deeply complex and dynamic phenomenon. The NAP promotes effective PVE approaches that do no harm and that actively promote empowerment and specific development priorities.

The PVE National Action Plan shall cover activities that could be labelled PVE related, i.e. developmental programs not necessarily directly oriented to the vulnerability factors of VE; as well as PVE specific, i.e. targeted interventions to individuals and groups at risk of VE. Observations from the PVE unit’s current analysis of the current situation prove that many of the sources of grievances which were declared and announced by the social movement could be categorized under both PVE-specific and PVE-related issues which are linked to trust-building, inequality, human rights, and socioeconomic conditions.

Although evidence proves that general interventions are seldom effective in decreasing violent extremism susceptibility, the aforementioned systemic analysis show that many of these interventions might contribute to the achievement of the outcomes on the long-term. The scope of the NAP shall focus on the following 8 types of activities.

Scope (Types of Activities)

- Capacity Building
NAP shall include capacity building opportunities for governmental, non-governmental and international actors on the necessary tools and concepts of PVE in the Lebanese context.
- Research and Evidence Development
NAP shall support scientific research and evidence development that focus on identifying and understanding the root causes of VE and impact analysis for potential PVE activities.
- Policy Reform
NAP shall include programs which aim to change policy and legislations necessary for achieving the designated outcomes.
- Early Warning
NAP shall include early warning instruments that help the government and the different stakeholders be informed about emerging factors and events which could potentially stimulate or otherwise precipitate violent extremism.
- Rehabilitation and Disengagement
NAP shall step on specific grey areas between Counterterrorism (CT) and PVE. Particularly, NAP shall include programs and projects which are related to prisons rehabilitation and human rights respect in CT efforts.
- National and Local-level Programs
NAP shall aim at achieving its outcomes on the local and national levels taking into consideration the PVE strategy’s key standards concerning stigmatization and labelling of specific group with VE.

- Modus Operandi

NAP shall include programs and interventions which understand and utilize the tools, technologies, and spaces which the VE groups utilize in recruitment, indoctrination, and public communication for their cause.

- Strategic Communication and Awareness

The NAP shall include strategic communication programs which deal with the narratives component of the violent extremism system. The role of these programs is to counter the narratives spread by VE groups and introduce alternative ones which introduce social values and norms that support social cohesion and citizenship. In addition, NAP shall support the development of local and national networks among concerned actors.

Limitations

Since the inception of the PVE efforts in Lebanon, the process was faced by clear limitations and challenges, but also great opportunities for the implementation. However, after the 17th of October uprising, a new set of limitations and opportunities might appear. Some of the factors resemble double-sided coins which include in themselves opportunities and limitations depending on the context change. Below is a non-exhaustive list of limitations and opportunities for the implementation of the PVE outcomes.

Factors	Limitations	Opportunities
Political Buy-in	Amid the current political turmoil, the sustainability of high-level political sponsorship to the PVE agenda might be affected.	Political buy-in might be amplified if new governments, interim or post-transition, understand the importance of the file for the post-transition stabilization efforts and if the international community highlights the importance of the agenda.
Sensitivity	PVE targeted interventions might cause sensitivity by targeted social groups if polarization increases based on political and sectarian divides.	PVE targeted interventions might be well-received and supported by key local actors who played significant role in easing societal tensions during the uprising events.
Resources	PVE file might not receive enough financial support from government or private sector due to the dire economic situation.	Resources might be mobilized by international donors if the international community continue to support stabilization efforts in Lebanon. Ministries might be able to incorporate PVE activities within their existing budgeted programs.
Instability	Political and security instability might stand against the sustainability of operations and pose new risks and factors to the prevention efforts.	Security actors might support PVE activities to complement the stabilization efforts. PVE activities are well-perceived as crucial policy items for immunizing Lebanon from possible risks of radicalization. The PVE unit shall, with its partners, continue to perform risk analysis and assessment. This will require the PVE unit to treat the

Factors	Limitations	Opportunity
Lack of Evidence	There are very few researches which understand the root causes of extremism in Lebanon, its underlying dynamics and the effectiveness of interventions on its preventions.	NAP with agility and to continuously submit it to revision and updating as the situation in Lebanon evolves. Universities and think tanks, domestic and international, shall be commissioned to conduct research focusing on all the pillars of the action plan in addition to the root causes analysis of radicalization in Lebanon. Evidence extracted from this research effort shall feed into the implementation phase of the NAP.

Target

Although NAP shall target all sorts of social groups in Lebanon by national-level and local-level programs, it shall give specific attention to the following social groups.

- Youth
The PVE Unit consider young people to be at the frontline of preventing and responding to violent extremism. Youth in the age brackets between (16-35) are among the key targets for radicalization in Lebanon.² However, this does not suggest that youth should be labelled or stigmatized by violent extremism. Youth shall rather be approached as both targets and partners in the implementation of the NAP.
- Women
PVE is considered to be a highly gendered issue in which gender and women empowerment interventions are necessary for maintaining social peace. Even though there is no available evidence on the role of women in radicalization or deradicalization in Lebanon, “women-led and/or women-focused interventions that reflect the complex realities of women’s roles and relationships within their own families and communities, as well as their potential or actual roles in violent extremism itself, can play an important role.”³
- Prisoners
NAP includes interventions in Lebanese prisons which aim at rehabilitation of prisoners with VE linkages and prisons system reform with the objective of preventing radicalization in prisons as well as helping the reintegration of prisoners in society.
- Vulnerable Communities
NAP includes activities that target communities which suffer from exclusion; face socioeconomic hardship and deprived from basic services, including host communities which suffered from the influx of refugees and host refugees’ camps. In addition, social reconciliation and cohesion activities are important to be conducted between segregated and polarized groups.

GOVERNMENT RESPONSE TO PREVENT VIOLENT EXTREMISM

THE LEBANESE

NATIONAL ACTION PLAN

2021 - 2023

C. Key Actors in Preventing Violent Extremism in Lebanon

Most stakeholders have a strong interest in the PVE agenda which inspires a continuity of the close management and consultation approach adopted by the PVE-Unit throughout the process. This could be confirmed by British Council (SR2)'s survey conducted upon the business continuity phase in the aftermath of the 17 Oct uprising, more than 90% of engaged CSOs and universities expressed interest in the PVE file and believe in its value.

There is obviously more work needed to involve the Parliament in the PVE process with more consultations with relevant parliamentary committees.

Although donors' interest in the process has practically materialized in the tangible support granted by the Danish, Swiss, Canadian and EU partners, more work is needed to further elaborate on the interest of the donor's community in the process.

The overall involvement of the private sector and religious institutions could materialize more with wider consultations with religious entities and a more inclusive community of private sector entities, in addition to the Banking working group.

D. Legal and Policy Framework

The legal foundations of the National PVE Action Plan are rooted in several constitutional, legislative and executive regulations:

The Lebanese Constitution

The constitution's preamble affirmed that "Lebanon is a founding and active member of the United Nations Organization and abides by its covenants and by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The Government shall embody these principles in all fields and areas without exception... Lebanon is a parliamentary democratic republic based on respect for public liberties, especially the freedom of opinion and belief, and respect for social justice and equality of rights and duties among all citizens without discrimination."

In addition, according to Article 9 on conscience and belief, the constitution directly tackles the key social issues related to extremism by ensuring an "absolute freedom of conscience."

It also gives the constitutional prerequisites for state actions in preventing violent extremism by stating that "the state, in rendering homage to the Most High, shall respect all religions and creeds and guarantees, under its protection, the free exercise of all religious rites, provided that public order is not disturbed. It shall also guarantee that the personal status and religious interests of the population, to whatever religious sect they belong, shall be respected."

Moreover, in Article 13 on expression, press, assembly and association, the constitution assures the protection of freedom of expression in different forms and for different functions within the limits established by the law.

The Lebanese Penal Code No.340 of 1943

The Lebanese penal system criminalizes terrorism and every act which represents a support to terrorism operationally or financially. Articles from 314 to 316 define the act of terrorism from the operational and behavioral perspectives. However, extremism is, by nature, unrecognized or defined by the Lebanese penal code. Not limited to the above articles, acts of direct or indirect violence are criminalized by the penal code. The scope of the Lebanese penal system does not cover preventing violent extremism.

Ministerial Statements

The Ministerial statements of the last 5 governments since 2006 stressed the importance of countering terrorism with a special highlight on the impact of terrorist activities on social, economic and political stability. Nonetheless, there has been no direct mentioning of prevention or violent extremism.

Council of Ministers' Decrees

During the process of developing the National Strategy for Preventing Violent Extremism, a thorough analysis of the role of every ministry in PVE has been conducted. An analytical matrix has been developed for every ministerial bylaw and its PVE conceptual note. In that sense, every ministerial objective has been directly linked to the ministries' bylaw.

LEBANON'S APPROACH TO PREVENTING VIOLENT EXTREMISM

THE LEBANESE

NATIONAL ACTION PLAN

for PREVENTING VIOLENT EXTREMISM

2021 - 2023

A. Achieving the Objectives of Lebanon's National PVE Strategy

The national PVE Strategy has stated in its first section a set of standards and general objectives which constitute ground rules for the implementation of the action plan activities. The below specific activities aim to implement the objectives of the National Strategy for Preventing Violent Extremism. It is paramount that these activities are implemented in the earliest stage of the implementation process.

Objective	Activities	Priority	Starting date
Understanding the root causes of violent extremism in Lebanon	Commission research on the root causes of violent extremism in Lebanon. Research shall be conducted with the purpose to inform policy and program development. Research shall also focus on the role of different actors in radicalization, the process of radicalization and its dynamics, the key factors which shape individuals' decisions to support and engage with extremists' groups.	High	Q3 2021 – Q1 2022
	Commission research on Radicalization in Lebanese prisons which analyze the interaction between prisons inmates and its consequences on radicalization inside prisons.	High	Q3 2021 – Q2 2022
	Commission research on the violent extremism-crime nexus in Lebanon. This shall focus on the ecological factors which could increase the individual propensity to violent extremism and crime; the interconnection between crime organizations and violent extremism milieus in the Lebanese context.	Medium	Q2 2022 – Q4 2022
	Commission research on online radicalization and the role of social media platforms; dark web; gamifications and the type of violent extremism narratives online which target the Lebanese context.	High	Q3 2021 – Q2 2022
Guidelines for Preventing Stigmatization of PVE interventions	Commission research to produce guidelines for preventing stigmatization of PVE interventions. This research shall include analysis of the impact of stigmatization on the success of PVE activities. It shall also provide guidance to policymakers, NGOs and academia on how to craft programs, while taking into consideration the unintended consequences which stigmatization might cause.	Medium	Q1 2022 – Q3 2022
Guidelines on Human Rights based PVE interventions	Develop a human rights-based guideline for PVE interventions. The guidelines shall be tailored to target different audience from security apparatus, policymakers, NGOs and international organizations.	High	Q1 2022 – Q3 2022

notes

Objective	Activities	Priority	Starting date
Understanding Gender Sensitivity in PVE programming	Commission research on the gender dynamics of PVE and its underlying sensitivities on PVE programming in Lebanon. Research shall be policy-driven to provide proposal for empowering women vulnerable to extremism groups exploitation.	High	Q1 2022 – Q3 2022
PVE Legislative Agenda	A legislative agenda shall be developed, which contains the set of legislative reform recommendations in the National PVE Strategy. It shall also include the concerned parliamentary committees and the current legislative environment.	Medium	Q3 2022 – Q2 2023
Developing a Social Mechanism for Monitoring social Transformations	Develop a social and institutional mechanism that monitors social transformations and changes; support and protect young people and groups that are at risk of radicalization. The mechanism shall help monitor trends and forecast risks which change in context pose on radicalization. It also shall focus on the elements of resilience and immunity which could be provided to young people.	High	Q3 2021 – Q2 2022 group. These grievances also feed communal competition and social conflict when they cause exclusion of specific groups and enhance their vulnerability. This action plan prioritizes socioeconomic interventions which target vulnerable communities and groups at risk, however, it does not provide policies and programs which could contribute to the overall economic reform in Lebanon. Conscious of the complementarities between both streams of policymaking, it is worth highlighting that several macroeconomic and public finance problems are adding burden to any prevention effort. Individuals lack of access to finance and de facto capital control have been reported as core causes for several suicide attempts and violent reaction by aggrieved citizens. Although this could not be directly tackled by the PVE national action plan, it is the PVE unit's responsibility to update the government's risk assessment based on the impact of public policies on social peace.

The Overall Desired Changes

I- Short-term Change (Year One)

1. Increase understanding of the dynamics and root causes of violent extremism in the Lebanese context with robust scientific evidence.
2. Build the capacity of the relevant governmental and non-governmental stakeholders to increase their readiness to implement NAP activities.

II- Mid-term Change (Year Two)

1. Produce countering and alternative narratives to the narratives of violent extremists especially those who use elements of the Lebanese context for justification.
2. Implement a scheme to monitor, prevent and counter online radicalization. This involves, for instance, concrete partnerships with the private sector and civil society.
3. Strengthen security and judiciary authorities' capacities to prevent violent extremism and enhance their human rights mandate and commitment to CT.

III- Long-term Change (Year Three)

1. Enhance security and non-security entities' cooperation on PVE on the national and local levels.
2. Decrease the individual-level propensity to internalize violent extremism narratives .
3. Implement the Ministry of Interior's multidimensional prisons reform plan and ensure prisoners participating in NAP activities are better prepared for reintegration in society.

FIFTH
MECHANISM

THE LEBANESE
NATIONAL ACTION PLAN
for PREVENTING VIOLENT EXTREMISM

2021 - 2023

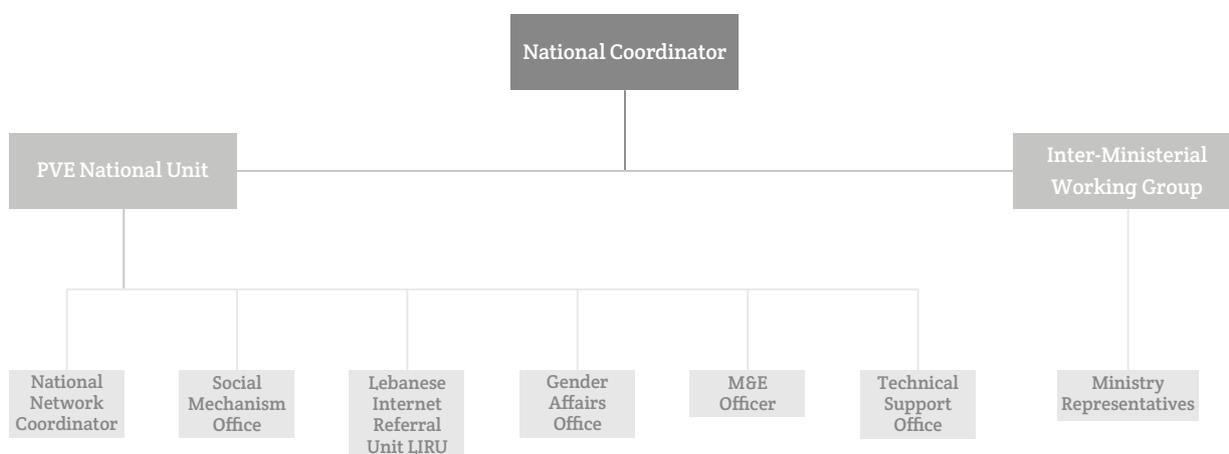

A. PVE National Unit

The Lebanese National Unit for Preventing Violent Extremism is responsible for leading the government’s agenda on PVE, acting as the single point of entry for international cooperation and coordinating implementation of the national action plan, in partnership with relevant ministries, civil society organizations, local stakeholders, academia, and members of the National Network for Preventing Violent Extremism.

The Unit consists of four specialized offices and a team of specialized personnel as per its role in the PVE agenda and the pillars’ designated actions of this National Action Plan. These offices consist of specialized experts, working under the PVE National Unit to increase Lebanon’s resilience to online radicalization, plan a gender-sensitive intervention, coordinate the PVE National Network, provide technical support and perform a thorough monitoring and evaluation (M&E). The below organigram explains this structure.

B. PVE Inter-ministerial Working Group

The PVE National Unit’s intergovernmental coordination takes place through the Inter-Ministerial Working Group. The working group is formed by the virtue of a Prime Minister’s decree and the designation by every ministry of its respective representative. The ministry representatives in the working group help in information sharing between the government bodies and facilitating joint actions.

- Diagram A & B

C. PVE National Network

The National Network for Preventing Violent Extremism consists of actors from all backgrounds who have been and will be interacting with the PVE file and acting within the national PVE agenda. Such multidisciplinary network is particularly needed due to the complexity of the Lebanese reality, which is characterized by the diversity of actors as a result of diversity in the social fabric. The Network will aim at increasing knowledge sharing on PVE related issues among its members through an interactive online portal. It will also facilitate continuous consultation and enhance partnership formation. It shall also provide updates about progress on the implementation of the Action Plan.

SIXTH

RESOURCES DEVELOPMENT

THE LEBANESE
NATIONAL ACTION PLAN
for PREVENTING VIOLENT EXTREMISM

2021 - 2023

A. National Budget

The implementation of this PVE Action Plan shall depend primarily on the Lebanese national budget. Therefore, it is imperative that a characterization process takes place between the financial appropriations of every sector and the resources needed for the implementation of this NAP.

B. International Donors' Forum

International funding is a key requirement for the implementation of the Action Plan due to the severe economic challenges which Lebanon is currently witnessing. A Donors' Forum shall take place to coordinate with the international community on the implementation through an institutional and transparent mechanism.

C. Public-Private Partnership

In addition, the private sector is a key partner in the implementation of the PVE Action Plan. Through CSR and different funding and partnership mechanisms, a public private partnership scheme could contribute significantly to the implementation.

SEVENTH

MONITORING AND EVALUATION

THE LEBANESE
NATIONAL ACTION PLAN
for PREVENTING VIOLENT EXTREMISM

2021 - 2023

Monitoring and Evaluation is an essential part of any intervention, particularly in the complex, fluid environments in which preventing violent extremism (PVE) programming takes place, where the risks of doing harm are high and the consequences can be serious. Solid monitoring of the National Strategy and Action Plans is of importance for accountability purposes, to reestablish trust in government institutions, measure impact and adjust interventions.

The PVE National Unit will provide assistance to the development of a Monitoring and Evaluation Framework (including support to set indicators and data collection methods). In parallel, support will be provided to ministries, through trainings, on the use of the M&E Framework as well as the review and alignment of existing national systems. In parallel, a national dashboard system will be developed. The dashboard will be used for reporting on the status of implementation of the strategy and action plans. The dashboard will be accessible to the wider public.

1. Provide an indicator's dashboard for the PVE Strategy objectives. The dashboard shall include indicators sets for each pillar of the Strategy. The dashboard shall include the data collection source and method and the responsible actor/s.
2. Prepare a short memo outlining the role of governmental entities, civil society actors, international stakeholders and academia on the M&E framework. The memo shall be shared with concerned actors and support in the national consultations around M&E systems.
3. Prepare training material for the M&E system which includes guidelines for measuring outputs and impact of PVE activities in Lebanon to be delivered to CSOs, representatives of interministerial committee and PVE Unit partners.

EIGHTH
RECALIBRATION

THE LEBANESE
NATIONAL ACTION PLAN
for PREVENTING VIOLENT EXTREMISM

2021 - 2023

A. Periodical Evaluation

Traditional approaches to monitoring and evaluation often include periodic reviews to assess whether predefined milestones are 'on track' and make necessary changes when needed.

The NAP is a living document that will be reviewed annually to allow necessary adaptation based on the contextual changes. It will also help in measuring progress based on pre-set baseline indicators.

It will be important to triangulate and validate results through both conventional monitoring and evaluation techniques, as well as emerging and innovative methodologies, including for example crowd-sourcing, participatory statistics, mobile data collection and micro-narratives, among others.

Particular efforts will be made to evaluate and monitor policies and programmes in relation to the PVE Strategy & NAP, considering frameworks, mechanisms or tools for monitoring and/or evaluation and the scarcity of resources dedicated to such exercises.

B. Milestone Evaluation

During the last quarter of 2023, the National PVE coordinator launches and coordinates the NAP final Evaluation process in close collaboration with the Interministerial Working Group. During this period, the implementation of activities shall continue and reporting on indicators will be updated by relevant individuals by the end of each month or as indicated in the M&E framework.

C. Planning for 2024-2026

Building on the final evaluation outcome of the NAP, the first quarter of 2024 will be dedicated for the recalibration process of the NAP, leading to a new / updated 3-year plan for 2024-2026.

This review process shall:

1. Take into consideration all the lessons and recommendations reflected in the final evaluation document.
2. Be inclusive and consider a participatory approach while ensuring the inclusion of all state and non-state actors.
3. Be conflict and gender sensitive.
4. Consult with all relevant stakeholders, whoever was engaged in the phase 1 implementation, including young people.
